Task Management

Curo365 utilizes its own proprietary tasking system, in conjunction with the tools native to Microsoft Office, to ensure that every instruction disseminated or received by a member of your firm, and the action associated with the instruction, has a corresponding time entry that can be billed to a client.

Time Tracking

Time tracking (billing) is standard with any practice management solution. However, the way Curo365 facilitates time tracking enables users to be dramatically more efficient and productive.

Calendaring

Curo365 takes the already amazing task, appointment, and follow-up functions contained in Microsoft Outlook, and enhances them in ways that are designed to make law firms more productive and profitable.

Invoicing

Our invoicing process allows for the dynamic control and approval of time entries on a schedule that makes sense for each law firm without sacrificing productivity. Curo365 enables the billing review process to occur contemporaneously with the completion of the work.

Accounting

Curo365 makes it simple and easy for accounting staff to manage a law firm's accounting, and Curo365's reporting functions allow other users to see key data points to keep the firm profitable and running well.

Collections

Curo365 was designed to assist law firms with collections, which is important from both cash-flow and customer satisfaction perspectives. Curo365 has features that allow accounting staff and administrative users to set thresholds, create automated notices related to a matter's financial status, and communicate useful data to attorneys and paralegals.

Dashboards & Reports

Unique to the Curo365 solution is the ability to manage a firm, independent offices, practice groups and individuals all from a single dashboard. These dashboards provide business data in easy-to-use tables and charts so that partners can easily monitor performance and progress.

Data Migration

When migrating your data from your current productivity solution, our specialists work directly with your team to capture all important and critical information into Curo365.

Curo365 was designed and developed by PrenticeWorx, a Microsoft Gold Partner, to enhance the amazing native capabilities of Microsoft products for the benefit of law firms around the world. Even though Curo365 was designed to solve problems experienced by large international law firms, it's affordable enough to be used by small and mid-sized firms as well.
