About StatusToday

StatusToday is the world's first employee insights platform that helps companies boost employee wellness and transform workplace productivity. It is a one-stop analytics platform with a continuous data driven feedback loop between managers and employees.

The problem StatusToday addresses

Successful companies must understand their employees in order to maximize their productivity. AI-driven insights provide invaluable objective information to managers, without the need for tedious and subjective surveys, endless evaluation meetings, and rough estimations of employee engagement. StatusToday, incorporating the latest findings in human and organizational psychology, addresses three main areas:

- Employee Wellness: integral to preventing burnout
- Workplace Productivity: empowering maximization of collaboration and communication efficiency
- Org Behavior: auditing team activity in real-time to ensure compliance and gain a comprehensive understanding of group processes

How it works

Patent-pending Artificial Intelligence in StatusToday analyzes metadata to compare companies and creates actionable insights without extensive monitoring. You can understand how your employee behavior compares to others in your industry, their email responsiveness or if they are overworked outside office hours. This eliminates the need for endless feedback surveys, inefficient meetings and expensive consultancies.

Systems StatusToday supports

Employee Wellness

StatusToday provides data related to employee wellbeing including email overload, overworking signals, and focus hours.

Using Artificial Intelligence, the platform produces insights such as work outside of regular office hours, late-night email correspondence, and number of hours without digital activity – indicating employee “mindfulness” – time essential to completing individual work. With these insights, managers can improve overall employee experience, bolstering individual productivity and preventing burnout.

Workplace Productivity

Communication and collaboration are an integral part of every organization. Therefore, understanding these processes and maximizing their efficiency is invaluable.

StatusToday empowers managers to analyze company communication and collaboration efficiency, including average response times, company reach, and external and internal “email noise” – commonly recognized as spam. With these insights managers can target specific areas for improvement so their teams can reach their full productive potential.

Org Behavior

StatusToday automatically provides access to a centralized audit log of digital activity across company systems. This information, presented in the live dashboard as searchable history, is integral to staying on top of compliance regulations and for any reporting obligations.

Beyond this, the platform draws useful insights relevant to the org behavior of the company including: employee lifecycle – from the time of onboarding “joiners” to off-boarding “leavers”, as well as the average days of different teams within the company.

StatusToday has over 140 companies from 33 countries with live data.
